LIQUOR TRAFFIC IN THE UNITED KINGDOM

Is to Be Run by the Government—To Be Taken Over by Purchase.

London, June 30.—A turning point in the history of the liquor traffic of the United Kingdom is marked by the decision of the government to purchase, through the liquor traffic control board, all of the breweries and public houses in the city of London and its immediate neighborhood. Some 300 public houses alone are involved, and the negotiations will be completed within a short time. The state will thus become not only publican but brewer.

It is the intention of the board to close practically all once some 300 drinking houses as unnecessary to the demands of the district. It is also proposed to build two or three model refreshment houses on the plan used successfully elsewhere, and to adapt others not now equipped for the sale of food and non-intoxicants.

Wallington.—Eric Malmquist was appointed swimming instructor and playground assistant for evening work to succeed Norbert Wilson, at a meeting of the Wallington Playground association.

Norwich, Conn., July 1, 1916.

WESTERLY SYNAGOGUE CASE ENDS

Judge Williams Penalizes Leaders in Perplexing Wrangle
Months Ago—Neighbors Quarrel and Woman, Fined, Appeals—Chief Brown Has a Crook Under Observation—Death of A. Judson Hall.

The apparently interminable cases of Charles Goldberger against Louis Deutsch and Louis Deutsch against Charles Goldberger, occupied the attention of Judge Oliver H. Williams, in the Third district court at Westerly Friday. These cases are a culmination of a fight between the parties to the suits and counter-suits, which occurred in the Jewish synagogue four months ago. First there were criminal suits and after these were settled followed the present criminal actions, in which each seeks to recover from the other $500 in damages for injuries received. It was agreed between counsel for Deutsch and Goldberger and Judge Williams that the case should be settled by a jury of twelve men, six from each side, and Judge Williams, who attended Deutsch and Dr. Michael H. Scanlon who treated Goldberger, were permitted to give their testimony at the opening. From their testimony it was shown that Deutsch had been cut in the mouth, received a slight but in the left cheek, and sustained a nervous shock that kept him from business four days. Goldberger's right hand was somewhat bruised and cut by reason of contact with Deutsch's teeth.

There were many witnesses and the testimony was practically the same as given in the trial of the criminal cases, which was in effect that Goldberger went into the synagogue with some text books, his praying shawl, and a candlestick, and was walking out with them when he was intercepted by Deutsch and the fight resulted. In the case of Goldberger against Deutsch, Judge Williams gave decision in favor of defendant to recover costs. In the case of Deutsch against Goldberger judgment was for plaintiff to recover $75 and costs.

Mrs. Jessie Kaplan pleaded nolo to the charge of assaulting Joseph L. LaLema, but the residential police, acting premises in the Pierce street section, and between them has long been a boundary line. The case seems to be evidence, that LaLema was engaged in ploughing land that Mrs. Kaplan then struck him with a stick, and finally struck him on the top of the head with a gas pipe, inflicting quite a large wound. According to the police, the assault was quite serious, but he believed justice would be served if jail sentence were imposed and the accused given to the police to be kept in custody. The case could not be settled by acts of violence. Mr. Agard said that Judge Williams had warned them against acts of violence.

Everett A. Kingsley, counsel for Mrs. Kaplan, denied that his client struck LaLema with a gas pipe. He said the affair was not of a serious nature, and that justice would be satisfied by the payment of a fine and that the boundary dispute might be settled out of court.

Judge Williams said the assault was a minor matter. LaLema received a severe and dangerous blow, and it was a marvel how he was able to continue in his usual work after the assault. Judge Williams imposed a fine of $10 and costs. From this judgment Mrs. Kaplan was released. She furnished a bond of $200 for appearance in the superior court.

Chief of Police Brown has in custody a man about 30 who he believes to be a crook of some prominence, one who has been behind the bars before, and has the faculty to keep all knowledge concerning himself to himself. He was taken into custody for the theft of a knock-out auxiliary boat. Wednesday evening the manager of Rockhaven, acting for Captain Wilcox of the Quononcong life saving station, called Chief Brown by telephone and told of a boat being beached. In the boat was a man about 30 years of age. After the auxiliary was beached the man came ashore in a skiff in which was a bicycle. The man had with him a net bag, which contained a gold glass, compass and other articles. It was lame, one leg being shorter than the other, and he had started down the beach towards Pleasant View on his bicycle, and Captain Wilcox was of the opinion that the boat had been stolen.

Chief Brown gave this information to the members of the force and warned them to be on the lookout for the suspect. An hour later Policeman Donald Ferguson arrested the man answering the description and took him to the police station notifying Chief Brown of the arrest. The fellow gave his name as Harry Belmont, and although his clothing had been soaked with salt water, denied the theft of the boat, and stated that he had been in no boat, and that he had ridden his bicycle from Providence to Westerly on Thursday. The net bag and its contents were missing, although it was seen in his possession shortly before his arrest, and while he was in the village of Pawcatuck. Belmont said he was born in Newark, that his father had been a carpenter and he had worked in New York, Stamford and Bridgeport, and had sought employment along the line between Providence and Westerly, but without success.

Friday morning Chief Brown, accompanied by Deputy Sheriff William H. Casey, went to Quononcong, taking Belmont with him. He was positively identified as the man seen to end the skiff after beaching the knock-out auxiliary.

The officers then made careful examination of the stranded craft and found her name to be Rita. They also found in the boat a pasteboard box cover that came by express from Jackson, Mich., and addressed to E. S. Brown, company, Dept. W., Fall River, Mass. This was the clue that led to the ownership of the boat, the clue that the boat had been stolen, and there is no doubt but Arthur Belmont is the thief.

Upon return to the police station, approximately four thousand are well armed fighting men. This force generally operates in bands of fifty to one hundred or more which make swift and unexpected raids upon outlying ranches and villages during the harvest season and at other times if their food supply happens to run low as it is in the present time. They are maintained throughout the farming districts who keep the tribes well informed and assist in the raids.

The Indians dress as do the peons with shirt and trousers of faded blue denim or khaki, usually the latter as it is more easily procurable. They have Yaquis have served in the revolutionary armies. A large straw hat, not unlike that worn by northern farmers, with brim turned down, protects them from the sun and conceals their identity when necessary; and their feet are protected from the rough country by leather sandals—guaraches, as they are called.

This similarity of garb makes it difficult even for Mexicans to distinguish parties of Indians from troops of the de facto government and as a result bands have been able to enter towns before their identity was discovered. For example, the town of San, Sonora, was raided last year. The inhabitants saw the mounted body approaching with trumpets flourishing and what they supposed to be Mexican troops. They were forced to flee.

The Mexican wife and family of an American John Lehr were carried off by the Indians during a raid upon the town of Sanque Grande during November of last year and the 17-year-old son had been killed, but these captives were released last month when the Indians were forced to abandon one of their many water holes upon the unexpected approach of a vastly superior force of Mexican troops.

Want of food and clothing causes the Indians to make their forays and for this reason the productive lands of the American settlements south of the Yaqui River have been subjected to many costly incursions which have led waste most of that region and one of their many water holes upon the unexpected approach of a vastly superior force of Mexican troops.

Many information indicates that the Indians are now operating to the northwest in the vicinity of Ortiz, and the town of the Southern Pacific railroad, thirty miles north of Quaymas.

BREACH OF PROMISE SUIT AGAINST V. ST. J. MAYO
Defendant Persistently Refused to Answer Questions.

New York, June 30.—Persistently refusing to answer questions on the ground that it would tend to "degrade or incriminate him," Virgilus St. J. Mayo, a New Haven manufacturer, appeared here today for examination.

before trial of the suit for breach of promise brought against him by Wilhelmina Meyer, who alleges that she supposed for several years that she was his legal wife. The plaintiff asserts that Mayo went through a marriage ceremony with her when he had another wife living, from whom he had not been divorced.

About the only questions Mayo consented to answer had to do with his places of residence at various times. He said he had lived at Stratford, Rockford, Ill., Chicago, Eri, Pa., Wheeling, W. Va., Ocean Grove, N. Y., Evanston, Ill., and Cleveland.

The only child Mayo would admit was with Alma Rice, who died in Cleveland in 1887, a year after their wedding. He said he had several children, but the only one he would name was his daughter Virginia.

The world's sid-jumping record is held by an American, who covered a distance of just under 192 feet.
